*Caregiving is a journey with twists and turns along the way.
Circumstances change, needs change, and sometimes you may doubt you're doing the right thing or if you're doing enough. Be patient with yourself, don't be afraid to ask for help, and join us for the journey!*

Making the Connection: Brain Change & Behavior

Ann Morrison, Ph.D., RN, CS

The changes that take place in the brain begin at the microscopic level long before the first signs of memory loss. Groups of nerve cells have special jobs. Some are involved in thinking, learning and memory. Others help us see, hear, smell and tell our muscles when to move. Learn how damage to the brain spreads and how that damage affects not just cognitive abilities but also behaviors.

Recognizing and Responding to Depression

Kim Burton, Director of Older Adult Programs, Maryland Coalition on Mental Health & Aging

The very nature of depression interferes with a person's ability to seek help; for depressed seniors, raised in a time when mental illness was highly stigmatized, it can be even more difficult, especially if they fear becoming a burden to their families. Helping your loved one with depression starts by recognizing the signs and symptoms and learning how to best support them and find appropriate treatment.

Different Types of Dementia, Diagnoses & Treatment

Nicole Absar, M.D.

Dementia is a general term for loss of memory and other mental abilities severe enough to interfere with daily life. It is caused by physical changes in the brain. Most common type of dementia; accounts for an estimated 60 to 80 percent of cases. Dr. Absar will discuss some of the little known dementias caused by infections, medications, and environmental factors.
